This, the first volume of Part 11, Analytical Chemistry of the Elements, contains two chapters of a general nature and four describing the analysis of specific substances. An excellent chapter (33 pages) on inorganic nomenclature by W. C. Forneliun provides an introduction to this part of the treatise.

The classic series Treatise on Analytical Chemistry, coedited with Philip J. Elving of the University of Michigan and published by Interscience Publishers, is among the most significant reference works in the field. As an educator, Kolthoff advised more than 50 doctorate chemists at the University of Minnesota, many of whom went on to major academic positions of their own.
