Hiking is the preferred term, in Canada and the United States, for a long, vigorous walk, usually on trails (), in the countryside, while the word walking is used for shorter, particularly urban walks. On the other hand, in the United Kingdom, and the Republic of Ireland, the word "walking" is acceptable to describe all forms of walking, whether it is a walk in the park or backpacking in the Alps.

A trail is usually a path, track or unpaved lane or road. In the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland path or footpath is the preferred term for a walking trail. The term is also applied, in North America, to routes along rivers, and sometimes to highways. In the US, the term was historically used for a route into or through wild territory used by emigrants (e.g. the Oregon Trail).

Walking in LIÅ-n and the Snowdonia National Park. Snowdon itself, at 3,560 feet (1,085m), is obviously the prime destination for many with the most popular routes to the summit being the Llanberis Path, which runs parallel to the Snowdon Mountain Railway and the more strenuous Pyg and Minerâ€™s tracks.. However, there are a number of other mountain ranges that are equally as beautiful and ...

Welcome to the online community for San Diego outdoor enthusiasts. When David Hay, one of the founding members, first started hiking in San Diego in 2005, there weren't a whole lot of resources. Searches for in-depth trail information were often ended in frustration; every site wanted you to join or sign up in exchange for relatively generic and useless data.
